Excerpt from the book:

“I remember the day John was diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease like it was yesterday. We had gone to the doctor for a routine checkup, and I was shocked when he told us the news. I couldn't believe that my vibrant, active husband was going to lose his mind.

The next few years were a blur. I watched as John slowly declined, both physically and mentally. He forgot how to do simple tasks, like brushing his teeth and getting dressed. He became increasingly agitated and confused, and he often wandered off. It was heartbreaking to watch the man I loved so much disappear before my eyes.

But even in the darkest times, there were moments of joy. I remember one day when John was sitting in his chair, staring out the window. I sat down next to him and took his hand. He looked at me and smiled, and I knew that he still knew who I was. That moment gave me the strength to keep going.

Caring for John was not easy, but it was the most important thing I have ever done. I learned so much about love, loss, and resilience during that time. And I am so grateful that I had the opportunity to spend those precious years with him.”
